

MORNING NOTE

For Internal Circulation

Tuesday, 23 June 2009

Technical

Although STI's close on 22 June 09 (Monday) was only down slightly, the intra-day price action indicated to us that immediate momentum is pushing lower. Thus, the probability of a down day on Tuesday 23 June 09, should be rather high, unless the US session has a strong upswing. 2237 is critical support and investors should watch this level closely.

Local and Regional Markets Headline

Singapore shares closed 0.28 per cent lower in volatile trade on Monday on lingering concerns over the strength of a recovery for the ailing global economy. The blue-chip Straits Times Index (STI) eased 6.26 points to 2,266.92 on volume of 1.51 billion shares worth $1.20 billion (US$821 million). Losers led gainers 263 to 165, with 855 issues unchanged.

Malaysian shares closed down 1.29 per cent on Monday due to profit-taking in selected blue-chips stemming from a lack of fresh leads, dealers said. Dealers said mining and property stocks led the losers. The Kuala Lumpur Composite Index lost 13.53 points to 1,045.97. Losers outnumbered gainers 602 to 146 and turnover was 1.24 billion shares valued at RM1.31 billion (US$374 million).

Hong Kong share prices closed 0.77 per cent higher on Monday, on bargain-hunting in property stocks and Chinese banks, dealers said. The Hang Seng Index closed up 138.62 points at 18,059.55. Turnover was HK$62.68 billion (US$8.04 billion).

Japan's Nikkei stock average rose 0.4 per cent on Monday, with brewer Sapporo Holdings and car maker Nissan Motor Co making robust gains, though caution about a possible correction in the market remained strong. The benchmark Nikkei gained 40.01 points to 9,826.27 after falling 3.5 per cent last week, its worst weekly performance in three months. The Nikkei has risen some 45 per cent from a March 10 low, and hit an eight-month high on June 12. The broader Topix rose 0.4 per cent to 922.48.

US Market News

U.S. stocks suffered their worst one-day loss in two months, dropping the S&P 500 back into negative territory for the year on Monday in a broad-based sell-off, as investors reconsidered the health of the economy.

Shares of economically sensitive sectors such as financials, energy and materials led the S&P 500's .SPX decline. A sharp drop in U.S. crude oil futures and other commodities hit shares of companies sensitive to those prices, including Exxon Mobil Corp (XOM.N), which lost 3.1 percent to $68.84.

Analysts said investors were keen to sell shares that led the market up in its rally since early March. Major averages have largely been trading sideways in recent weeks and many investors have speculated that more obstacles were in store for stocks.

"The recovery is likely to be anemic by post-war standards," said Hugh Johnson, chief investment officer of Johnson Illington Advisors, in Albany, New York. "The recovery in the economy and earnings is unlikely to be as strong as the rise in stock prices since early March has implied."
